

God Doesn't Hate Westboro

By Jack Hall

www.sundayschooldropouts.com

CHARACTERS

An angry protester

A loving believer

The Beatle's "All You Need Is Love" plays.

An angry young woman walks on stage, holding a sign that says "GOD HATES GAYS." She stares out at the audience, angry, nasty.

A young man walks by. He casually glances at the sign. He stops, goes back. He reads the sign. He looks at the girl. She looks at him. She gives him a confrontational look. He walks on. He stops before going off. He looks back. She looks at him. She sticks her tongue out. He looks away, making a face.

His face brightens - he has an idea. He runs off.

A few seconds later, he walks on, a sign in hand, hidden from the audience. He taps her on the shoulder and shows her the sign: "God Loves Gays." Her mouth opens in disgust. She takes his sign, tears it up and throws it down. He makes a sad face. She shoves her sign in his face. He walks away.

His face brightens - he has another idea. He runs off.

He returns shortly with a new sign. "God Loves Everyone." He walks up and proudly shows it to her. She starts to object, but he pulls the sign back, holds up his hand as if to say, "Wait! There's More!"

He turns the sign around. On the back it says, "Including Jerks!"

He points at her making sure she gets it. She looks a little ashamed - not much, but a little. She takes her sign and leaves. He turns to the audience, points at the sign, then the girl, and laughs. He laughs at himself silently, then he feels guilty. He points at the sign, then at himself, admitting yeah, he's one too.